clegant luncheon given by the Countess Esterbary on Thursday.

One of the most agreeable events of the Woman's National Council was the reception given them by Mrs. Harrison on Thursday. The guests, numbering about three hundred, were presented by Miss Willard to Mrs. Harrison and to the other ladles of the White House, Mrs. McKee, Mrs. Russell Harrison, and Mrs. Dimmick. Baby McKee and his lovely little sister were also brought in by their nunse and added greatly to the pleasure of the visitors. The White House presented a most attractive appearance, all the State rooms and conservatories being thrown open, and lighted and bright fires blazing on the hearths in many of the rooms. Among those present were Miss Willard, Miss Authony, Mrs. Sewall, Mrs. Thorpe, of Cambridge; Mrs. Ole Bull, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Clymer, Miss Jennie Croly, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Sallic Chapin, of South Carolina; Miss Mary Eastman, Mrs. Andrews, Mrs. Lothrop, Mrs. Balgarnie, of England; Mrs. Mary Dickinson, Mrs. Hunt, Mrs. Corse, Mrs. Senator Morrill, Miss Swann, Mrs. Kate Tannatt Woods, Mrs. Cilley, of Cambridge, and many others from every State in the Union. Mrs. Harrison, who endears herself more and more to the people of the country by her constant interest in every progressive and philanthrepic movement, and her universal courtesy to all who meet her, won all hearts by her cordial and unaffected greeting, and the guests lingered until the hour of the reception was fully past.

Washington's Birthday was appropriately palebrated on Monday night with a reception

J.: Mr. and Mrs. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Max Washington's Birthday was appropriately celebrated on Monday night with a reception tendered the Sons and Daughters of the Ameriean Revolution at the residence of Professor and Mrs. Cabell, on Massachusetts avenue, closing Mrs. Cabell, on Massachusetts avenue, closing with a dance by the young people in ancient costumes. The house was elaborately decorated with flags, and a line of Continentals stood in the hallway doing duty as guard of honor. The whole spacious mansion was thrown open and fully five hundred people crowded the rooms. Mrs. Harrison and Gen. Greely, as host and hostess for the Sons and Daughters of the Revolution, stood on the platform in the drawing-room and a line of ladies form in the drawing-room and a line of ladies to assist in receiving just below. Mrs. Harrison wore a plain gown of old-brown satin, with old-rose front; Mrs. Cabell stood at her side in a dark velvet gown, trimmed with steel-cut passamenterie; Mrs. Gen. Greely, in white silk and lace; Mrs. Gen. Shields and Knott, in black; Commissioner McDonald, in black lace; Mrs. Clara Barton, in crimson velvet; Russell Harrison, black lace, open down the front, disclosing a white satin petticoat. Mrs. M. Howard Clark, in pink silk; Mrs. Edward Roby, of Chicago, wore an elegant black velvet gown, with rich hand-embroidered panels and sleeves, over a white satin petticoat; ornaments, diamonds. Mr. and Mrs. G. Browne Goode, General and Mrs. Boynton, Miss Mary Desha, Miss Brecken-ridge, and Mrs. Tennis S. Hamlin were of the receiving party. During the evening there were patriotic songs sung. Gen. Greely thanked the ladies for their presence, and spoke of the two societies, whose scope and object is identical to foster patriotism and perfect the history of the heroes and heroines of this Republic. Marie Decca sung "The Star Spangled Banner" in a splendid manner. She was in fine voice, and the ancient maidens, with everybody else who could sing, joined in the inspiring chorus. Mrs. Harrison then read the roll of honorary members throughout the United States. The list was long, but she got through it without a break and in a clear voice. Marie Decca sang the Stacato Polka and Gunod's "Siumber Song." She wore a Paris gown of bead-embroidered Brussels net. Col. Jack, of Louisiana, made an eloquent address, full of Southern compliment and witty points, paying special tribute to the daughter's present. Refreehments were served in the dining room. At about 11 o'clock eight of the young daugh ters, in Martha Washington dress, powdered hair, and satin slippers, danced the stately minuet most charmingly. These were Miss Kennard, in old-rose brocade and white satin quilted petticoat; Miss Stoner, flowered china silk; Miss Branson, striped silk; Miss Young, striped silk; Miss Withers, flowered silk; Miss Ketcham Cheney, flowered silk; Miss Cabell, pale-blue silk; Miss Scott, old brocade, and Miss Bingham, white silk. Among others present were Miss Ransom, in a violet silk, veiled in black chantilly lace, and velvet sleeves; Miss Cabell, in white silk; Mr. Keim, Mrs. Keim, light china silk; Mrs. Senator Cockrell, black velvet; Miss Nettie White, black lace; General and Mrs. Veazey, Commander and Mrs. Dickens, Mrs. and Miss Halstead, Dr. and Mrs. Gallaudet, Dr. and Mrs. Lamb, Dr. Lee and Mrs. Lee, Mrs. A. Leo Knott, Mr. and Mrs. Rathburn, Miss Kate Field, Justice and Mrs. Bradley, Hon. and Mrs. J. B. Loring, Commissioner and Mrs. McDowell, Mrs. D. T. Voorhis, Miss Washington, and Senator and Mrs. Faulk-

One of the most pleasant social affairs of the season was the musicale given on Monday evening last at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Jules Demonét, 1909 H street. Their parlors were comfortably filled and the music was greatly enjoyed. At a late hour the guests retired to the dining-room, where the punch bowls were kept filled and a most sumptuous supper was served from a handsomely-decorated table.

Miss Elizabeth Pierce, of Commonwealth evenue, Boston, is at the Arlington for a stay of two or three weeks. During her residence here last season Miss Pierce added largely to her list of friends and admirers, and it was greatly regretted that she could not resume her resilence on Vermont avenue this season. Mrs. Pierce, however, is too strongly attached to her Boston home to bear transplanting permanently. Miss Elizabeth Pierce is a niece of Mrs. J. Mrs. Nathan Appleton, of Manchester-by-the Sea, is spending a few weeks in this city. Mrs. Appleton is one of the projectors of the Sum-mer School of Art and Music to be located near the Natural Bridge of Virginia. Mrs. John A. Logan is also one of the supporters of this new move in the interest of art. Cards have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. August Donath for the marriage of their daughter, Gertrude, to Mr. Edwin S. Clarkson, on Wednesday evening, at 7:30, in St. Paul's English Lutherau Church. Dr. W. E. Brown, late mayor of Gatesville. The ladies of the Board of Lady Visitors of the Washington Hospital for Foundlings have issued cards for two teas to be given at the hospital on the 4th and 5th of March, from 4 to 7 P. M. In addition to the delightful hospitality which has rendered the hospital teas so popular the Forget-Me-Not Club has prepared a novel entertainment in the form of an auction, at which will be sold innumerable closed packages, many containing valuable articles. To add to the interest and variety guests are requested to bring some article disguised in wrap-pings to add to the sale, though should it be in-convenient to do so their presence will be equally welcome and desired. Gentlemen of marked ability and wit will act as auctioneers, and much amusement may be expected. The funds realized are to be applied to the muchneeded draining of the hospital grounds.

Mrs. Mott-Smith, of Newbury street, Boston, is visiting Mrs. Ware, of No. 1529 Rhode Island avenue When Mlle. Decca was in Boston recently giving a series of concerts, at every one of which she scored an artistic triumph, Mrs. Mott-Smith gave an elegant reception in Mile. Decca's honor. Mrs. Mott-Smith's daughters assisted at the entertainment; one of them wore a lovely toilet of old rose and the other light blue. Mrs. Mott-Smith was elegantly attired in white and gold. In June Mrs. Mott-Smith and her daughters will sail for Europe. The young ladies will enter Newnham College, England. Mrs. Ware was assisted at her reception on Wednesday by Mrs. Mott-Smith.

On Wednesday morning in St. Alban's Church, Tenleytown Road, Rev. Mr. Falls united in marriage Miss Margaret Yeabower and Mr. Henry E. Weaver. The church was prettily adorned with plants and flowers in honor of the occasion. The bride's hand was given in marriage by her brother in-law, Mr. Phil Young. A handsome reception followed Phil Young. A handsome reception followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Weaver are making a wedding trip to Florida, where they will remain until the middle of March.

Mrs. Annie L. Diggs, associate editor of the Advocate, of Topeka, Kan., has been attending women's meetings in this city during the past week.
